"Salmon Munger bought land in the 'Holland Purchase' about 1809 or '10, locating in what is now Chautauqua Co., N. Y. Here he had begun to make a home where neighbors were few and Indians plenty, when as a 'Minute Man' he was called into the army, leaving his young wife and infant son in their wilderness home. He was located at Buffalo, when that place was burned by the British." "Corporal, Capt. Tubb's company" (Reg't not given).

"Near the close of the war, returned to Saratoga Co., where he remained about two years, when he again moved to his wilderness home with his family." Here in the course of years and with the assistance of his sons, became possessed of a fine farm. In addition to farming, he was a stock buyer and contractor. Hiram Munger was a man of powerful physique; six feet two in his stockings, with no surplus flesh, large boned and muscular. In his youth he is said to have been able to perform many of the feats of strength attributed to the Connecticut river boatmen of those days, one of which was to lift a cask of New England rum by the chines, rest it on his knees, and drink from the bunghole. This great strength was used to better purpose in after years.

His life and character were uncommon in many respects. Apparently eccentric to the present generation, into which he had lived and retained his vigor from one that had already become historic, his oddities were often only the ways of men of the earlier generation to which he belonged. He was forceful in manner and speech, possessed of an abundant dry humor that often took the smart out of some incisive remark as soon as made. He became a tower of strength as an open-air preacher, and it was this that made him noted. Rough as he often appeared, his speech itself had qualities that more polished men often strive for in vain. It had the strength of simplicity, a wealth of homely illustration, and the wisdom gained from stern experience in life, rather than the learning of books. The man was worthy the reputation he attained, and of respect and consideration from those who did not agree with him in opinion.

In 1809, when less than three years of age, he removed from his native town of Monson with his father, the family locating at "Put's Bridge" (Ludlow), where his father was employed as miller by a Mr. Putnam, who operated a gristmill at that place. He was the eldest of eleven children; five sons and six daughters, the youngest daughter being the only one now living.

His first occupation in life was as tollgate keeper at the bridge, being assistant to his father. This occupation perhaps instilled something of the knowledge of men that stood him in good stead when he faced large audiences in later years. While engaged here he had an experience which demonstrated the character of the boy. One Piner, a halfbreed Indian and Negro, had committed a murder. In attempting to escape, he came to the tollgate and demanded to be allowed to pass through. Not having any money, the boy steadily and courageously refused him passage, in spite of direful threats. His father coming from the mill, the murderer hastily clambered over the gate and escaped, but was later captured, tried, and executed.

Later the family removed a few miles north to "Eaton's Mill," where his father worked as miller. A characteristic touch of the life of the times, with its necessity for economy and family interdependence, is seen in the fact that during one summer, Hiram, then only a lad, worked on a farm in Wilbraham for $3.00 a month, and used his season's wages to buy his father a cow.

As well as the family interdependence at that time, there was a joining of forces in the scant community, which was held together by bonds of neighborliness. When there was any sickness, Hiram's mother was often sent for, and on such occasions, as the father was at work, he as the oldest of the family was left in charge. On one of these occasions a sister's dress caught fire from the open fireplace. With a presence of mind remarkable, he half carried, half dragged her to a near-by stream and threw her in. The brook had been swollen by recent rains and she was rolled over and over by the muddy waters, and threatened with death by the opposite element from which she had just been saved. Hiram did not lose his wits but ran along the stream to where the banks were low, seized his sister and pulled her ashore. Naturally, with all this work and family care, he had scant opportunity for schooling. He had noted that he was nearly sixteen before he could write or read a paper.

His father came to Chicopee, then a parish of Springfield, in 1820, and operated a saw- and gristmill near the present site of the Spalding plant. Here he assisted his father in his business, and later worked as a miller in his own interest, being at one time part owner of a sawmill on Poor brook at "Old Skip." He continued in this business until he became a preacher, and even after that, was frequently consulted on matters pertaining to the business. In selecting a site for a water power, his methods were primitive in the extreme. Passing along a brook on which a business was designed to be established, he would select such a spot as his judgment suggested. Here he would drive a stake, space off a certain distance, and drive another stake. Returning up the stream to the first stake, he would take out his watch, cast a chip into the current and time its passage down stream to the lower stake. From this he would figure the fall of water at this point. By what process of reasoning he arrived at his conclusions is not known, but he was universally successful. Even in his old age his keen judgment was shown. A paper-making concern was erecting a dam on the Chicopee river at "Mungerville" preparatory to erecting a mill at that point. Being interested in such matters, he visited the place frequently. On one occasion he said to the young engineers who had charge of the work "Your dam will go out," but they laughed at him, and enquired of some near by: "Who is this old codger?" Later the dam went out as he said it would, although built of solid granite. He had seen the defect, and prophesied the result accurately. The enterprise failed, the site was sold, and is now occupied by a power house where electricity is generated for use by a part of the city of Springfield.

But his work as miller and mechanic was not his life, and never will be thought of, excepting incidentally. His life was that of a religious leader, and as a campmeeting preacher his name became known to thousands through New England, and through report and his writings spread over a much wider area.

The process of his conversion was not rapid, though his consciousness of it was sudden. The compulsory parish tax for the support of the church aroused his disapprobation. He was something of a reprobate, or liked to fancy himself such, and acted so cantankerously at a campmeeting that the disturbing element expected him to be a leader in the tent-destroying and other mischief. But the helplessness of the people aroused his sense of justice, and with a companion, whose strength almost equalled his own, he whipped the mob and preserved order. A little later he signed the abstinence pledge somewhat against his inclination, for he had three gallons of good cherry rum at home.

Through his physical prowess he became employed as a regulator to preserve order at Methodist meetings. Disturbers of all sorts and conditions met with summary treatment at his powerful hands. From being a free lance in the protection of the Methodists, he himself became converted as one of them. He remained a Methodist for some years before he joined the Adventists. At first he had a strong aversion to the "Millerites." He came in contact with them by taking charge of their campmeetings purely as a matter of business and on account of his experience. Through observation he became convinced that they had got the truth of the nature of the events. He never became a strong "timist," however, though he believed this to be the last stage of the earth. The story of his conversion (to Methodism) is of interest as showing something of the nature of his religious life.

"'While going home from meeting I determined,' he said, 'to serve God, and while walking along in the road I lifted my heart to Him for His blessing. All at once I had such peace break in upon my mind, that I stopped still. I dared not shout, for the road was full of people; so I got away alone in some bushes on the bank of the river, and if anybody was happy it was I. I praised God, I shouted, I laughed, and then I tried to pray, but I could not ask for anything for I had then got everything. I had never found so delightful a place before. I stayed there till midnight alone, yet with the best company I ever had.'"

"Picturesque as the campmeeting still remains, it had much more of that quality in the earlier days. Then it was in many sections the event of the year; from all the surrounding country people came afoot and in vehicles of every kind, owned by the country population of those days. It was a time of social intercourse as well as religious fervor. Not all were well disposed, but came rather to scoff and disturb. Eld. Munger called that element the 'Cain family' and his dealings with its members was strenuous. Many who came to sneer remained to pray; for those who persisted in disorder, a look, or at most a word, was enough from the imposing figure on the platform, whose strength and courage had been tested in an hundred encounters.

7th Gen.

Elder Munger traveled all over New England conducting these meetings. Some of the famous camping grounds were at Portland and Biddeford, in Maine; Portsmouth and Alton Bay in New Hampshire; and at Litchfield, Conn. Though he was always among the most honored at the campmeetings in this city, no correct estimate of the man and his work can be formed without a knowledge of his power and esteem abroad. A few years ago a short notice inserted in a Boston paper, stating he would be pleased to hear from some of his old friends, brought letters from all over the Union, written by those whom he had met and helped during the years of his ministrations.

"He was a keen fisherman, and it is said that the first thing he did on reaching a place where he was to preach at campmeeting, was to cut a pole and try the streams of the region. If the catch was good he took it as a favorable omen for the meeting. Many of his illustrations and stories were taken from the sport. One case of this is still remembered; he had asked for a text from which to preach, and a sister had given him: 'I will make you fishers of men.' In his sermon he gave a description of the catching of a muskalonge at Lake Ontario that would have made any sportsman jump with delight. It was so perfect; and he applied it with a parallel to the hook of the Almighty, that was tremendously impressive. A local paper said the next morning that it was 'the best of the wine, at the last of the feast.'

"Mr. and Mrs. Munger lived together sixty-five years, until her death at the age of 81, which occurred at the home of her daughter, Mrs. J. H. Hendrick, in Springfield. Elder Munger felt her death keenly, and never recovered from the blow. It has been noticed that his decline in strength dates from her death. (From Springfield Republican, in part.)

Ye Olde Time Wedding.

Hiram Munger, Alfred S., his brother, and Sumner Cooley, went to Enfield, Conn., in the spring of 1829, accompanied by their sweethearts, and were married under one ceremony in the parlor of the "tavern" of "Bob" Abbe, a celebrated though eccentric landlord of those days.

Hiram married Lucinda Hancock, Alfred S. married Lucia Humphrey, and Sumner Cooley married Caroline Munger, sister of Hiram and Alfred S. Some say they made the journey to Enfield on horseback, the prospective brides riding behind their lovers. This was frequently done in those days.* I have heard that on the return journey when passing through Springfield, some adverse criticism was made regarding the party by hangers-on at the Rockingham "tavern" and applied especially to Hiram, who had his face bandaged for some reason. The remarks stirred the future "Elder," and he threatened to get down from his mount and "thrash" the entire crowd. As he was a husky youngster (6 ft. 2 in.), and was seconded by his brother,

* A common mode of journeying was on horseback. Thus people rode to church, husbands and wives on the same horse, the woman on a pillion behind the man.

another big one, and by young Cooley, who could do some stunts at "wraslin," the loafers became silent, and allowed the bridal procession to depart in peace, to finish the last lap of six miles to Chicopee Falls. Doubtless the cavalcade was picturesque enough. (Given by Ariel Cooley, 80 years old.)

Sumner Cooley was a miller and farmer; lived at "Old Skip" on the level lands on the high banks above the beautiful Chicopee, near the "Cooley corner." The writer holds uncle and aunt in sweet remembrance. When a boy, tired and hungry from a day's fishing on Poor brook, he was always sure of a welcome at their hands. Oh, departed days, and departed youthful appetite: what would I give for one more bowl of richest milk from the old brindle cow which stood tethered on the broad green at the front of the house, and plenty of aunt Car'line's "ry'n injun" bread!

House and occupants are gone, but the old hemlocks still stand on the verge of the bank over the river, and as the winds stir their sombre branches, seem to whisper tales of the past to sympathetic ears.

Aunt Susan; a name to conjure pleasant memories. The "old maid" of the family, yet the milk of human kindness was ever sweet in her disposition. Kindly, sympathetic, jovial, a lover of young people; her life seemed much of sunshine, despite years of suffering with that incurable disease, cancer. She bore her sufferings with unclouded face, and little of murmuring. She was a large woman of necessity, for she was built around a large heart. William Munger

7th Gen.

William Munger moved with his parents from Ludlow to Wilbraham ("Stony Hill") in 1820, later in the same year removing to Chicopee, then a parish of Springfield. Here he passed his childhood, youth, and early manhood. Was a farmer, miller and millwright, much of the time in association with his father. After his marriage he lived at "Skipmuck" in the "Old Warner house" at the corner, nearly opposite the present site of the Oxford Country Club's house. In 1844, lived with his father on a farm in later years known as the "Munger place," east of the town of Springfield, and partly within the limits. While living here and at the Warner house, was employed at the sawmill on Poor brook.

While on a visit to Troy, N. Y., with his family, among his wife's relatives, an opportunity offering, he remained and learned the iron moulder's trade, which occupation he followed many years. Returning to Chicopee, he was employed as moulder in a local foundry, later entering the employ of the late Eliphalet Trask, on Water street, Springfield, living in Indian Orchard, then as now a part of the city, walking to and from his work, morning and evening. In 1852 moved his family to Springfield, where he lived the remainder of his life. He continued in the employ of Trask until the last years of the Civil War, when he was employed at the United States Armory. In 1873 moved to the place where he died, following the occupation of nurse, and was employed in that capacity by many of the prominent families of the city.

He was a man well and favorably known, and had a wide circle of friends and acquaintances, as was attested by the large gathering at his funeral, which was conducted by Rev. Joseph Scott, a close personal friend for many years.

Personally mild and gentle, he was nevertheless of a strong will when convinced he was in the right. Used tobacco until he was thirty years of age, when, believing it to be harmful, ceased its use, never to take it up again.

335. vii. Charles E.[7] Munger (Stillman,[6] Joseph,[5] Samuel,[4] Samuel,[3] Samuel,[2] Nicholas,[1]). b. "Stony Hill" (Wilbraham), Mass., July 27, 1820; d. Springfield, Mass., Dec. 15, 1888; m. Austin Munger was a machinist and locomotive engineer, and for many years in the employ of the "Western R. R.," of which the Boston and Albany was the successor. Of a genial and fun-loving disposition, he was a great practical joker. Many of the older men yet in the employ of this road will remember him, either by personal knowledge, or tradition. His jokes were mirth-provoking (except to the victim), but devoid of all personal feeling or bitterness. An ardent follower of "Old Isaac," he was often along some favorite brook among the Berkshires, as occasion offered, and with success, as his was a skillful hand with rod and reel. A man of sterling worth; quiet and unassuming, and a foe to all unrighteousness and injustice.

He was last employed at one of the large paper manufacturing concerns at Holyoke, Mass., as general machinist. Some months previous to his death, he retired from all work because of failing health.

"Aunt Alvi" was a lover of music and a sweet singer. Her voice was like a rippling brook, or matin song of robins. With her twin sister and younger sister Lucy, sang in the choir of "The Old Church on the Hill," under the direction of their father. An old lady speaking of these sisters said: "To hear them sing was like listening to the song of birds; their voices were wonderfully sweet. I used to hear them often when I was a young girl."

She was of a cheerful and sunny disposition even when the clouds of care hung heavy about her. Though fully appreciating expressions of sympathy, she would frequently turn the trend of thought to happier things by some bright saying or witty remark.

Her sweetness of voice and buoyancy and cheerfulness of disposition never left her, even to the end. Her strength depleted by her untiring devotion to her invalid husband, when stricken by sickness, she was unable to rally, and passed peacefully away.

Y., May 25, 1907; buried at Chicopee Falls, Mass. His grandfather, Moses Hancock, was a soldier of the Revolution from Wilbraham, Mass.

Albert Hancock was a skilled machinist and toolmaker, employed by the Stevens Arms and Tool Co., at Chicopee Falls, to within a few months of his death. Member of the Masonic order.

No children.

At this writing, "Aunt Lucy" is still with us, loved and venerated; the "last leaf on the tree." Having no children of their own, the paternal and maternal instinct of this couple found expression in the love bestowed on the children of sisters and brothers. The writer remembers with pleasure many hours spent in their home, "before the war." As one grew too old to be "cuddled," another of a later generation assumed the place of honor.

Although in her 83d year, Mrs. Hancock retains her vigor to a remarkable degree, and the sweetness of her voice is not perceptibly impaired, when she joins in the "sings," which are always an important part of family reunions. Since becoming a widow, she has passed much of her time with nephews and nieces in the West. At present she is living in Salina, Kan., with Miss Mary A. West, daughter of her sister Almira (Apr., 1913). J. B. M.

Clark Munger was a farmer in Hartland, N. Y., where his children were born. In 1844, sold his farm in Hartland, and bought one of one hundred acres in Royalton, N. Y. He was a soldier of the War of 1812-14, and wounded in the side while crossing the Niagara river in a boat from Lewiston to Youngstown. Was partially disabled by this wound and received a pension. The following is an official record of service:

"Clark Munger Serg't 23d U. S. Infantry, War of 1812; Pensioner. Placed on roll Jan. 20, 1817; pension commenced May 30, 1815. Annual allowance $32.00."

In 1850, he visited his brother Marvin in Missouri and died early in the morning following his arrival. Sat up visiting until 2 A. M.; retired, and was soon after taken sick and died at 4 o'clock. Buried at Munger's Mills, Mo.

Marvin Munger was a millwright, miller and farmer. An old pocket day-book, now in possession of one of his descendants, has the following entry: "Marvin Munger, of Lima, county of Ontario, State of New York."

It is said he made the acquaintance of Miss Lewis as her family were passing through New York on their way to Missouri. Later went to Missouri, renewed the acquaintance, and was married. Settled at the head of Black river, where he built a grist- and sawmill which was the first mill erected in that part of Missouri. The place where he settled is now known as "Munger's," Mo. He was sheriff of Ripley Co., when it comprised a greater area than now. He was a Baptist in belief.

Augustus Munger was a farmer at Whiting; formerly lived in dwelling now occupied by Thomas Ketchum, situated on the main street of the village. Member of the Baptist church; at one time serving as church clerk. Feb. 23, 1841, conveyed by deed a certain parcel of land to the Baptist church, on which to erect a church edifice. Building subsequently erected, and still in use (1900).

The following, found among old records at Whiting: "Augustus Munger's ear mark: half crop from under side of right ear on cattle, sheep, and hogs." Augustus and his wife are buried in the old cemetery in rear of the Congregational church at Whiting.

"Mr. Munger died at his home in Portland, from the effects of a paralytic stroke. He was 81 years of age. He passed his early life on his father's farm at East Livermore, and attended the Kent Hill seminary from which he graduated, after which he went to Bangor and learned the painter's trade. In 1839 moved to Portland where he met Hon. Charles Dummer, who was so favorably impressed by the young man, that he induced him to study law in his office. Later Mr. Munger studied with John P. Maguire, and was afterward admitted to the Cumberland bar."

"Mr. Munger was the first agent to represent stock fire insurance in Maine. In 1851 represented the Massachusetts Mutual Life Company and wrote in one month fifty policies of prominent Portland citizens. He was one of the early advocates of the temperance movement, and had served all the chairs in the order of Good Templars, and had been Chief Templar of the State."

"He was interested in many associations; was a trustee of the Maine Wesleyan Seminary and Female College at Kent's Hill; a member of Ancient Landmark Lodge of Masons; of Ligonia Lodge of Odd Fellows, and of the Aged Brotherhood. One of the original members of the Haydn Association, and a vocalist of repute."

Rev. Charles Munger was a student in Maine Wesleyan Seminary, from 1834 to 1840. Received on trial in Maine Conference in 1841, and with the exception of two years supernumerary and superannuated (1848-1849), continued in effective service until 1887—a period of forty-four years.

"While laid aside from active service by failing health in 1848, he was favored with a voyage to England by the kindness of his friend Capt. Jarvis of Castine, who had been converted under his labors at that place."

He was a delegate to the General Conference in 1872 and 1876. Received the degree M.A. from Bowdoin College in 1868.

At the age of three years Elijah H. Munger moved from New England to Exeter, Otsego Co., N. Y., with his parents. In 1820 the family moved to Volney, Oswego Co., N. Y. Soon after the arrival here his father died, and thereafter much of the care of the household devolved upon him. His youth and early manhood were passed upon a farm. His opportunities for an education were such only as were afforded by the public schools of those times. Still his desire for knowledge, and his intense mental activity, resulted in the attainment of a good English education.

His early Christian character was moulded by the pious vigilance and instruction of his widowed mother. He was early persuaded of a Divine call to the Christian ministry; but a sense of his insufficiency for so great a work, with his limited education, held him back for many years. During these years he became settled in life, and supported his family in the vocation of a farmer. His early convictions never left him; and when at length his brethren urged him to go forward, he was constrained to receive at their hands, in quick succession, licenses as exhorter and local preacher. He labored successfully for eight years as local preacher, but the inward voice constantly called him to a more complete separation for the work of the ministry, and to a larger field of labor. After much prayer and many wakeful nights, having obtained the consent of his family, he resolved to offer himself to the Conference as a traveling minister.

He joined the Black River Conference, of which the Northern New York Conference is the successor, in 1849. He was ordained deacon by Bishop James, and elder by Bishop Simpson. His appointments, in nearly all of which he served the full disciplinary term, were as follows: Stuben, Brocket's Bridge, two terms; Delta and Westernville, Floyd, Trenton, two terms; Rome, Embargo street, Talberg, New Bridge, Centerville, Manlius Station and Parish. In 1869 he became supernumerary, which relation he held for one year only. In 1875 he felt that his itinerant work in the Conference was done, and at his own request he was granted a superannuated relation, which he retained to the close of his life. His last years were spent at his home in Manlius Station.

He was a great reader and a close student through life, and notwithstanding his limited education, he came to be a man of large intelligence. He had pronounced views on all great questions of the age. His sermons abounded in fresh thought extemporaneously delivered. His people uniformly regarded him as an able preacher.

In his pastoral work he was tender and conscientious, and could not rest while it lay in his power to comfort the sick or minister to the bereaved. He stood high in the esteem of his Conference. He was always thought of when men of exceptionally sound judgment were required in constituting a special committee. He did not often speak on the Conference floor, but when he did speak he shed new light on the subject in hand.

After years of study and patient waiting, he became a man looked up to and loved for his simple eloquence and kindness of heart. He was a power in his church, and did much for its upbuilding in the wilderness of the Black river country.

He died in his home at Manlius Station, N. Y. His funeral was attended by a large gathering of ministers and laymen and was in charge of Rev. Dr. Ives, presiding elder of the Syracuse district. The burial was at Oakwood cemetery, Syracuse.

Russell V. Munger lived in Massachusetts until 1813, when his father returned to Madison Co., N. Y., with his family. About 1827 moved to Milan, Erie Co., O., where he married. In 1835, settled in Michigan, in the northwest part of Prairie Ronde Twp., on a quarter section of heavy timber land, and by steady wielding of the ax, and later with the assistance of his sons, cleared up a very fine farm, which he occupied for more than fifty years. He died in the home of his daughter (Sarah E.), Mrs. Albert Carpenter, whose husband now owned the farm.

The following sketch, written by one who knew him well, appeared in the Kalamazoo Telegraph of Feb. 23, following his death:

"Russell Munger was a man of sterling worth; one of the kind of men that performed their full share of converting the wilderness into fruitful fields; a good citizen, husband and father. His residence was about five miles from the store of the writer and his partner, where Mr. Munger did most of his trading for many years. He used to come to town with an ox team and lumber wagon, nearly always bringing with him his wife (a worthy helpmate) and Mrs. Abner Mack,* and while the ladies did trading, Mr. Munger took pains to inform himself from those present, of what was going on in the country, from national affairs to those of his neighbors. Few newspapers were taken in those days; letters from any distance cost 25 cents postage, and were few and far between. He was a man respected by all who knew him. He paid his full share of taxes to meet the expenses of town, county and State, and never put either to one cent expense on his own account. He was honest and conscientious in his dealings with his fellow men, and was worthy to have his name handed down to posterity as one who performed his full share of earth's requirements."

Some items from Russell V. Munger's account book:

Sugar, 18¾ cts. per lb. Unbleached cotton cloth, 17 cts. per yd. Tea, $1.25 per lb. Nails, 12½ cts. lb. Calico, 25 to 31 cts. per yd.

He paid for these goods in dressed pork at $2.00 per 100 lbs.

"It took several hogs to furnish calico dresses for mother and daughters."

CHENEY MUNGER

Born Aug. 7, 1815, near Attica, N. Y. His mother died when he was two years of age, from exposure, as the family started to the West and were compelled to retreat to Buffalo, N. Y., from an attack by Indians. In 1838, he settled in Davenport, Iowa, and in 1839 married Priscilla Lee Nagle. They were the first couple married in Davenport. He was a merchant of Davenport for twenty-four years. He and his wife united with the Methodist Episcopal Church in 1839. He was a man of great kindness and gentle disposition, and literary and poetic in tastes.

He died in Council Bluffs, Iowa, in February, 1866, and is buried there beside his wife.

"Joseph E. Munger was a millwright and miller; moved from Michigan. near Berrien Springs, where he owned and operated a sawmill, to Jackson Co., Ia., in 1848. There he also had a sawmill, but by fire and flood lost all of his property. He was a hard-working man; quiet, sensitive; an innate gentleman, pure-minded, and honest to a penny, considering others' claims before his own."

LUMAN MUNGER

Born Bethany, N. Y., Nov. 22, 1815.
Died Bethany, N. Y., Jan. 27, 1899. 83 years old.

7th Gen.

Luman Munger was a gunsmith by trade; a genius in this and in tool making. Went to the gold fields of California in the rush of 1849, enduring great hardships through the deserts, and walking a great part of the way. Made two trips overland to California, in one of which he was accompanied by his brother Ephraim Fay Munger.

On his return East, located at Dubuque, Ia., where he worked as a gunsmith and in prospecting in the lead mines in the vicinity of that place. He was honest, generous, and a great stickler for what he considered right.

He conducted a gunsmith shop at Batavia, N. Y., for some years, but on account of failing health went to live with a niece, Mrs. Harvey Chapman of Bethany, where he passed the last months of his life.

"Deliverance H. Munger was a farmer. Shortly after his marriage moved to Wisconsin, where he took up land in Greenfield Twp., and prepared a home. The following spring his wife came West, being accompanied by her mother and step-father, Dea. David Barnes, and her two sisters, Eunice and Miranda, who had married, respectively, Daniel and Simeon Barnes, sons of Dea. David Barnes. Daniel and Simeon Barnes each bought farms in Wauwatosa Twp., Wis., about five miles from where Deliverance had already prepared a home. An opportunity offering for a cash sale of this place, he disposed of it and bought 167 acres of land in West Granville Twp., adjoining the farm of Simeon Barnes, there being only the public highway between. The farm of Daniel Barnes also adjoined that of his brother Simeon. Here these families lived and reared their children.

"Deliverance H. Munger was a small man; ambitious, energetic, and a tireless worker. While clearing his land and building his log dwelling, he was known to work until midnight, but was up and about his chores by daybreak the next morning, and ready to resume work on his dwelling with his men directly after breakfast.

7th Gen.

"He was the typical 'Yankee'—shrewd, calculating, saving. As a boy he gave evidence of these traits. He saved his pennies until he had 100, with which he purchased an ewe sheep of his father, who was to keep the sheep and have all the wool, but the boy was to have the increase. The first year the old sheep brought him twin ewes. The second year the old ewe brought him twin ewes again, and the yearlings brought him an ewe each. The third year the original purchase brought him two more ewes, and the two-year-olds brought twins, and the yearling a lamb. His father saw that the boy had made a good bargain, and it would not be long before his 300-acre farm would be stocked with sheep, so he bought the boy out, giving him a pair of two-year-old steers for his bargain and sheep.

"These steers he cared for, feeding them 'nubbins' of corn, and brushing and currying them until they became fat and sleek beauties. These he sold for $125.00 in gold and placed the money at interest.

"Died following an illness of about a year brought on by over heating and injuries received in handling a yoke of young steers which he was breaking to drive preparatory to using them in the woods, the pair running away and into the fence with him and the sled to which they were attached.

"A few months previous to his final illness, he had completed and furnished a two-story frame house, which stood near the well with its sweep and moss covered cobblestone curb, in which hung the 'old oaken bucket'; moved in, and patiently awaiting favorable winds, set fire to and destroyed the old log house in which he had formerly lived. Well does the writer remember the finale of the old house in which he was born. Many times since has he seen much larger conflagrations, yet because of the impression then made on his youthful mind, the burning of the old log house still seems the greater."

Israel Everest Munger was a farmer from his boyhood. When a young man he moved from Bethany, N. Y., to Wisconsin, in Wauwatosa Twp., where he bought land, cleared it and got it under cultivation. In 1850, exchanged this farm for 180 acres of new land in the Township of Scotts, Cheboygan Co. This land he also cleared and occupied as a farmer until the outbreak of the Rebellion, when he enlisted in 12th regiment, Wis. Volunteers, serving his full term of enlistment, and was honorably discharged, after which he returned to farm life. About 1884, removed to Colorado, being located at the town of Barr in that State, later moving to the city of Denver, which was his last place of residence. He was naturally of rugged physique, which, notwithstanding his early years of pioneer life and his years of military service in the cause of his country, he retained in a large degree up to his last illness. He was the oldest member of the G. A. R. in the State; his funeral being conducted under the auspices of the Byron L. Carr Post, G. A. R., of Denver. Interment was at Riverside. "Of a genial, social temperament; a man well liked and respected."

Lyman Munger moved from New England to Western New York when a young man. In the years immediately following his marriage, he lived at Bergen, N. Y., but soon removed to Penn Yan, where he remained until 1866, when he went to Galva, Ill., where he remained until 1891, when he located at Denver, Col., which was his last place of residence. Mr. Munger was engaged in the drug business most of his active life. In 1896, Mr. and Mrs. Munger celebrated the 60th anniversary of their marriage. Mrs. Munger died in 1902, after a wedded life of 66 years.

The Penn Yan Express, noting the death of Lyman Munger, said: "Mr. Munger, while in this town, conducted a drug business in the store now occupied by C. E. Shepard, jeweler. He was a prominent and highly respected citizen, and he and his estimable family are pleasantly remembered by our older residents."

Preceding the Civil War he was a strong Abolitionist and temperance worker.

"This pioneer couple made the journey from Bergen, N. Y., to the then new country of Illinois, in 1836, in a 'Prairie Schooner,' the mother sitting in a rocking chair with a nursing babe in her arms. On the way they stopped at the historic 'Beaubien Tavern' in Chicago, and continuing on into the wilderness and building a log cabin among Indians and wolves, enduring all the privations and inconveniences incident to a life in the wilderness."

Mrs. Chamberlain was of a singularly genial and happy disposition. Preferred the company of young people, and was always an acceptable addition to their numbers. An earnest and consistent member of the Baptist church, her life was filled with good deeds, cheering words, and helpful suggestions.

When 72 years of age, revisited her childhood home, and wrote some verses on the occasion, of which we have, for lack of space, given only a portion.

AGAWAM.

Oh, Agawam, dear Agawam,
I love thee more than ever.
Thy fresh green lanes and stately trees,
Will fade from memory never.

Thy brooks, thy springs, thy purling rills,
Thy meadows rich with grain;
Thy flowery dells and verdant hills,
Rejoice my heart again.

And could I range this wide world o'er,
On mountain or by sea,
I ne'er could find on any shore,
A spot so dear to me.

Dear Agawam; I've loved thee well,
I've loved thee fond and true;
It grieves my heart to say "Farewell"!
And bid a last Adieu!

"A man of sterling character, he was highly respected by those who knew him. He was a farmer and at one time Justice of the Peace. At the request of the War Committee of Yates Co., N. Y., where he then resided, he assisted in securing recruits for a new Penn Yan company in Aug., 1862, and at its organization was elected Captain. As such he was mustered into the U. S. service, Oct. 3, 1862, and with his company ("C") became a part of the 44th N. Y. Vol. Infy. He had a part in the battles of Fredricksburg, Chancellorsville, Aldie, Gettysburg,—where he was wounded,—Rappahannock Station and Mine Run. In Jan., 1864, he was detailed for special duty at Elmira, N. Y., where he was inspector of prisons for captive Confederates, and where he remained until his muster-out in Oct., 1864. While Inspector, the accidental discharge of a rusty revolver, found by a Confederate, was the cause of a wound which troubled him as long as he lived, and doubtless shortened his life." (From "His. 44th N. Y.")

"He was an unassuming man, whose record shows no remarkable deeds, but only a faithful, honorable adherence to duty—and the esteem in which he was held in his own company, and also among the prisoners under his charge, proves that duty was not neglected." (I. M. C.)

Lyman F. Munger moved from Vermont to Western New York when about twenty years of age. In 1857 he located at Rochester, and followed his trade of watch-making. Later, went to Shelburne Falls, Mass., as superintendent of the bank lock department of the Yale Lock Co.'s manufactory at that place. About 1869, returned to Rochester, and entered the employ of Sargent & Greenleaf, as mechanical expert and inspector. While there he perfected many inventions for them, among them the time lock, which made the firm name even more widely known. About 1888, resigned and resumed his business of watch-making. He was a man of remarkable mechanical genius; probably the foremost expert in time movements in this country, and in everything pertaining to mechanical science, a close student, and a man of remarkable attainments. In the years of his retirement from active business, made for his own use a small hand camera with which he amused himself in taking views in and about Rochester and elsewhere. This camera and the work done with it attracted much attention. Among those interested in it was one who later became a member of a firm who began the manufacture of cameras of the "Amateur" class, and who to-day are leaders in this line of business.

"Mr. Munger was a member of the Second Baptist church of Rochester during his early life in that city, and became one of the constituent members of the Lake Avenue church at its formation in 1871. He served the church five years as trustee; two of the five years as president of the board, and for nearly twenty years as deacon. He was scrupulously honorable, absolutely loyal to truth as he saw it, and very generous in heart and hand."

Nelson W. Munger moved from Wales, Mass., to Winterset, Ia., where he operated a woolen mill, manufacturing flannels, blankets and other woolen goods. Was also in mercantile business. Later moved to Des Moines, Ia., where, through his business, and by judicious investments in farm and city property, he eventually became extremely well-to-do. Owner of the Munger Hotel (which is operated by his son-in-law, Wm. E. Ballard) and other city property. About a year previous to his death, returned East, and revisited the scenes of his childhood days in Wales and Monson, renewing old acquaintances, and recalling old days. He visited the old cemetery on the hill near the "South Pond"; that "Bit of sapphire set in emerald" where lie his grandparents, Cyrus and Prudence, his father and mother, and his great grandmother, "Widow Deborah Munger," wife of Elnathan, the latter of whom it is said: "Reported died in the Revolution." He visited the old house where he was born, which was formerly occupied by his grandfather, Cyrus, and by his father in turn, and which is now known as the "Whitman Munger House." This old house he inspected with great interest, making as he said what would doubtless be his "Last visit to the old home place."

Lorinda S. Munger in her young womanhood was, beyond question, the "Belle of the Village." An old chronicle thus describes her: "She was a damsel of many attractions; irradiation of intellect, polished symmetry of form and feature, rosy cheeks and eyes lustrously gleaming with grace and delightfulness—added to which were amiability of disposition, gentleness of manner and excellent behaviour, with no tincture of disdainfulness or haughtiness. Beyond all cavil, she was a very fine and beautiful lady."

This record further says: "He (John Babcock) left (Wales) in 1842, returning at intervals. In one of his visits, with some hastiness if not abruptness, he snatched and bore away to his distant home, the belle of our town, somewhat to the discomfiture of other admirers, and one especial lover and expectant." (From Gardner, Mass.)

7th Gen.

The writer recently met an old lady at the library in Brimfield, who in the course of conversation corroborated the above regarding Lorinda. She said: "I was somewhat younger, but I remember her well; she was a very beautiful girl. A friend wrote to John, advising him to come East if he wanted to keep his sweetheart, as others were paying her earnest court. He came and married her and took her away. I remember the circumstance well."

Orin G. Munger was a merchant and hotel man. "For several years following his marriage, kept a hotel at Belleville, Ontario, Can. In 1839 moved to Oswego, N. Y., where he opened a restaurant on the site of the present Union Hotel. After awhile he converted the place into a grocery and followed that business for a time, but sold out and opened the Niagara House, which stood where the Grant block now stands, and which was the leading hotel in Oswego. Next he bought the then Oswego Hotel, now the Fitzhue House; remodeled it, added the new part, and named it the "Munger House," and for many years that hotel, under his management, was the popular house of Oswego. In 1863, he was elected a Superintendent of the Poor for Oswego County, which office he held three years. Soon after the organization of the Commissioners of Public Charity, he was elected clerk of that board, retaining the office till his death. Mr. Munger was one of the best known men in Oswego, having been for many years a resident here, and being one who made many acquaintances. He was a man of kindly instincts and to his friends he could not do too many favors. Although so advanced in years, he had enjoyed remarkable health, and few of his friends realized that he had already passed the allotment of life." (From Oswego paper, Nov. —, 1877.)

The writer first became acquainted with Mrs. Sprague in 1896, when in her 87th year, through correspondence pertaining to family history. Cordial, bright, witty, and possessed of a most remarkable memory of people and events "back in York State," where she was born, she proved a most entertaining and instructive correspondent. It is a remarkable fact that most of the statements made by this old lady, and which were given wholly from memory, are substantiated by documentary evidence. This delightful correspondence, which assumed a more personal phase, was continued up to within a few months of her death.

At a party in celebration of her 88th birthday, given by ladies of the D. A. R., of whom Mrs. Dr. Kitchen was the leading spirit, the following verses, written for the occasion, were read. Mrs. Sprague also received beautiful presents and floral offerings at this time, together with letters of congratulation from friends in many states.

—May 20—
1809————1897.

Just eighty years ago, and eight,
In springtime's flowery morn;
Within a pioneer's home,
A sweet girl babe was born.

A rude log house, within the shade
Of forest standing nigh;
Where summer winds thro' sylvan bowers,
Oft' sang her lullaby.

The years have flown; here now we meet,
With joy to celebrate
Thy reaching of a ripened age;
Full four score years, and eight.

From old New England's rugged hills,
From New York's fertile fields;
From broad Wisconsin, forest clad,
Each loving tribute yields.

O, daughter of the pioneer!
A remnant of thy race;
A halo seems thy silvered hair
About thine aged face.

We love thee—thee we venerate,
Last of a sturdy band;
Who by their toil, and prayers, and tears,
Gave us this favored land.

And "when the bugle call shall sound
For silence and to rest,"
May thine a peaceful passage be,
As babe on mother's breast.

J. B. M.

Mrs. Sprague was highly delighted and deeply moved at this evidence of love and veneration, and often mentioned the occasion in after years.

In February, 1898, in an "exceedingly impressive initiation" became a member of the Forest City Relief Corps, No. 71. In a letter, which was prepared and read by her she said: "As I am a stranger to most of you,

7th Gen.

I will introduce myself as 'grandma' of Corps 71, department of Ohio. I have been a resident of Ohio sixty-eight years. I have cast my first vote for a woman and she was elected school commissioner. I have always lived loyal, I pay taxes to the Government, and hold to protection. I was born at Copenhagen, Lewis County, N. Y., May 20, 1809, of pioneer parents, under the administration of James Madison, our fourth President, with my rights protected by the emblem of Liberty with thirteen stars. I am of Anglo-Saxon descent, and Revolutionary stock. My grandfather served under Washington's command, and my husband served in the War of 1812, which entitles me to a pension. My first instruction was received in a log school house, surrounded by the shades of the forest. The floor was made of split logs with the bark side embedded in the earth. The benches were made of slabs, supported by crotched legs, and the hour-glass marked the time."

"They said they did not want me to work; that they would do my work for me. They wanted me for an ornament; one said for counsel. An ornament is something beautiful; to deck, to adorn, to embellish. Can I fill the program? It is the duty of every one to make this life beautiful, and the only way to do it, is to make each hour beautiful as it comes, that when it goes its way, we may not wish to recall it to blot out some action here or add a kind word there in place of careless negligence. But let my task be what it will, may I act well my part; there all the honor lies. If I merit a flower on my grave, I shall be satisfied when I awake in the likeness of Christ—until then I meet you with open hand. No matter how old, or which way we turn, we always find in the book of life, some lesson to be learned. We must take our turn at the mill; we must grind out the golden grain; we must work out our task with a resolute will, over and over again."

Notwithstanding her advanced age, Mrs. Sprague made six hospital shirts which were sent to Cuba at the time of the Spanish-American war.

A few years previous to her death, because of defective hearing and failing sight, she disposed of her property in Cleveland, O., and removed to Chicago, living with a niece, where she passed her last years in comfort and peace. Except for partial loss of hearing and eyesight, she was remarkably well preserved, and her mental faculties were but little impaired, even to the last.

She was wont to say: "That precious promise, 'I will never leave thee or forsake thee' comforts me." "I fret not myself, and await with composure the bugle call for silence and to rest." She desired to round out a century of life, and when this was accomplished, was ready, and even anxious to go.

John E. Munger received his education in the schools of his native place, and at the Academy at Lowville, N. Y. He began teaching quite early in life, and was one of the most successful of the old-time pedagogues. He was a disciplinarian of the old school, relying more on physical than on moral suasion when the necessity arose, but withal, kindly and sympathetic. His first experience as a teacher was of a rather strenuous order. He was appointed to a school where several masters had previously been "run out," and where several of the older boys who attended made boast that they would give "Lige" the same treatment. School opened and the first day passed without unusual incident. In the forenoon of the second day, one Rathburn by name started to make trouble. The struggle was short, and in favor of the new master. Rathburn was carried off the field and taken to a pump, where a liberal supply of cold water restored him to consciousness.

The narrator of this incident, then a small boy, further says: "I being small, escaped notice and slipped out during the fracas, ran home and hid under the bed, and no amount of coaxing, or a promise of a ride on the master's shoulders, got me back to school that winter."

In 1852 he removed to Wisconsin, where he continued to teach, sustaining his reputation as an able instructor and disciplinarian. He lived on his farm in Omro until 1868, when he moved into the village, where he died about two years later. He was fond of horses and always drove a good team.

For several years he served as Superintendent of Schools of Winnebago Co., Wis. He was a man of fine physique; over six feet in height, and of a character unquestioned. He was a banker during the last two years of his active life.

ERASTUS A. MUNGER

After graduating in 1835 from the Jefferson Medical College, Philadelphia, he practiced medicine in Waterville, N. Y., until his death in 1879.

He was one of the first to adopt the Homeopathic system, and was eminently successful from the first. Was among the first in organizing county, state and national societies of that school, and held highest offices in them.

He was also an enthusiastic promoter and leader of music in his home town, his church choir being quite famous in that locality.

From his ancestors, soldiers in the Colonial, Revolutionary and 1812 Wars, he inherited an ardent and active public spirit.

"Erastus A. Munger was a physician; studied medicine with Dr. Haven of Waterville, and attended lectures at Fairfield, and in 1834 was granted a license to practice medicine from the Medical Society of Oneida Co., N. Y., a society of the allopathic school. He first practiced in Sauquoit, then a village in the town of Paris. He entered Jefferson Medical College at Philadelphia, graduating therefrom in 1835. He began practice at Waterville in the fall of that year, and continued there the most of his life. He was the first physician to adopt the Homeopathic system in Central New York, and for many years there was no other physician of that school nearer than Syracuse."

"He was a notable man in many lines; and in the midst of his arduous duties as physician, having a ride of remarkable extent, found time to be an enthusiastic musician and successful florist. Dr. Munger's roses were celebrated for variety and beauty and brought the light of pleasure to many a pain-weary face as he generously distributed them among his patients."

"Children never dreaded Dr. Munger's coming; instead it was the one mitigating feature of their ailment that he would come and bring them some nice sugar pills, for he had an ingratiating way with little folks, and his liberal distribution of unmedicated pellets when he came to see their elders, paved the way for their administration in a useful form. So when he came into the house in his quick, brusque way, wearing in their season the light gray top-coat and tall gray hat that were the distinguishing features of his always immaculate attire, and with a flower in his button-hole (a daffodil in early spring), the children clustered around him. A little awed, to be sure, by his unvarying dignity, yet very certain that he felt most kindly toward them and would soon pour some 'candy' pills into their shyly outstretched hand.

This good doctor of the old school was most patient and kind with young mothers, teaching the names, properties, and use of simple remedies; his theory was that these medicines, carefully administered, often arrested serious illness, or even saved a life."

7th Gen.

"One stormy day in mid-winter Dr. Munger made a passing call at a Peck's Corners homestead, and found the family living room strewn with old documents; deeds, wills, of five generations, ancient account books, and letters yellow with age, that had been brought from the attic and were being placed in order by an enthusiastic antiquarian. The doctor expressed his pleasure in the interest taken in these old papers, and the hope that they would be carefully preserved for historical purposes. The outcome of his remark was a thought which formed the nucleus around which these annals of the Hanover Society have gathered." (From "History of the Hanover Society.")

George G. Munger, when very young, removed with his parents to Rochester, N. Y., where he prepared for college at the Rochester High School. Entered Williams College in 1845, where he remained one year. He then entered Yale, from which college he was graduated in 1848. In 1849 entered the Harvard Law School. Admitted to the Bar in 1850. In 1855, at the age of 28, was elected Judge of the County Court, which office he held for four years. In 1863 was elected to the State Senate, where he served with distinction for two years. He was United States District Attorney for the Northern District of New York in 1866-67. In 1880 removed to New York City, where he formed a partnership with Martin T. McMahon, and practiced his profession until his death.

He was a natural and unusual student; valedictorian of his class at Yale, and a member of the senior society of "Scroll and Key." He stood high in his profession, and was greatly respected. Member of the Rochester Historical Society, and of the New England Historic-Genealogical Society of Boston, Mass.

"Another man of mark in the body (State Senate, N. Y.) was one of the younger men, George G. Munger of Rochester. He had won respect as a County Judge, and had a certain lucid way of presenting public matters, which made him a valuable public servant." (From autobiography of A. D. White.)

He was a gentleman of education and culture. Was a lawyer at 21 years; Justice of the Peace, and Special County Judge from 1853 to 1855, and from 1865 to 1867. As a literary man he was a regular contributor to Waverly Magazine—the leader in its line of that day—and an occasional contributor to other magazines and periodicals.

He was a poet of more than ordinary genius. A small volume of his poems was issued by his sisters in 1874, following his death. His longest and most pretentious poem, on which he had spent many years, and which he considered his best, was completed just previous to his demise. The manuscript of this poem is in keeping of relatives at Owego.

SKETCH OF THE LIFE OF HARVEY J. MUNGER.

(By his friend and pastor.)

"H. J. Munger was born near Bloomville, Delaware Co., New York, March 3, 1821. From the time he was a lad he took care of his parents and his father's farm. When they died and he had married he moved to New Jersey and taught school for a short time at Spottswood and at Perrineville. Later he went to New York City and engaged in business. In the second year of the Civil War he entered the Government Service as a bridge-builder, in which service he continued three years, at the end of which he was Commissary of a Department of Bridge-builders, providing food for a thousand men.

"At the close of the war he returned to New Jersey and commenced business as a contractor and builder in Ocean Grove. He built the Lakeview Hotel, the first house in Asbury Park. In the fall of 1871 he went to Denver, Colorado, on account of the ill-health of his daughter Augusta. Here he continued at his business as contractor on a large scale. He built the first block of stores in the city of Denver with iron fronts, shipping the iron from New York. At that time it was regarded as the best building west of the Mississippi. He stayed in Denver till his health gave out, when he returned to New Jersey, and after a while commenced business again, assisted by his son, in Blue Ball, near Freehold.

"His son returned to Denver, when it was proposed by them that they both go to Pulaski, Tennessee, and take up work there. Mr. Munger went there, and while waiting for his son, received word of his son's sudden death in Denver. This led him to give up for a time the work of building but he stayed in Tennessee and for three years superintended a plantation of 900 acres and afterwards bought and sold live stock. His health gave out again and in 1875 he returned to New Jersey. From that time up to 1892 he worked along the shore as a journeyman carpenter. On a visit to his old home at Blue Ball he was overtaken by a sickness from which he never recovered. His son-in-law, Daniel R. Miller, wrote to him to come to El Paso, Texas. He went and took charge of his son-in-law's business of making pitch and gravel roofs and sidewalks while Miller carried on the same business in the City of Mexico.

"After a year he returned to New York City. A friend persuaded him to visit Delaware County, his father's home, where he spent a year. He went on visiting friends and relatives in New York State, in Knoxville, Pa., Waterford and Erie, Pa. He went to the World's Fair in Chicago, and then went down into Illinois and visited the children of his brother and two sisters. He went to LeMar, Mo., stayed there four years, and then spent a year in Oregon with his daughter Mary. He returned to LeMar, Missouri, his sight failing him rapidly. Here he became totally blind, but remained for a while with friends near LeMar. He then came to Trenton, N. J., to make his home with his daughter, Mrs. Samuel D. Wiseman. In the spring of 1902 he moved with his daughter to Oakhurst, near Elberon, N. J., and in the fall of 1902 to Perrineville, N. J., where he now lives with his daughter and grandchildren.

"Although much afflicted with rheumatism and compelled to lie or sit on his couch, he is still a man of fine physical presence, of a sunny disposition, very active powers of mind and a most entertaining talker. He is much interested in all public matters. He has been for much of his life a member and lay-preacher in the Methodist church and active in temperance work. His life has been full of interesting incidents, which he can relate by the hour to the entertainment of his callers."

"The funeral of the late Mrs. Martha (Monger) Forster took place at Bellwood yesterday. Mrs. Forster, who died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Cooke, at Deer Park, was the last member of one of the pioneer families of Peel county. Her father, Benjamin Monger, who was for many years Magistrate for the County, went there in 1808 with a party of colonists including the Proudfoots, Jarvises, and Merrigolds. He lived for a time in New Brunswick, and before coming to Canada was a sea captain. Mrs. Forster's mother was a Miss Merrigold, a cousin of John Wesley, the famous evangelist. In 1843 Miss Monger married Mr. James Forster, a member of another pioneer family, with whom she spent her married life near Bellwood. Mrs. Forster retained all her faculties to the last, and could give many interesting reminiscences of the early days of Ontario, when Toronto was only 'Muddy York'."

Harvey Munger was one of the pioneer preachers and teachers in Allegan Twp., Mich. One of the first pastors of the Baptist church in this township, which was organized in 1841. A man of unusual physical strength; of quick and strong sensibilities; of rare eloquence as a preacher of the gospel.

"Bro. Munger came to this State in 1836, and three years later to this association. He saw the church in Allegan rise under his missionary labors, and its promising house of worship prepared for partial occupancy. In later years he labored at the Base Line, and other interests. Naturally he was gifted in speech, and of fervid emotions, and his preaching was of rare power and effectiveness. The melting glow of his eye, and the heartiness of his fluent natural speech, all of us who knew him can yet see and feel."

Darius S. Munger was one of the first settlers at Manitowoc, Wis., removing to that place in the spring of 1837. Was a carpenter and builder; a man possesssed of remarkable natural mechanical ability. Was Tax Collector, Justice of the Peace, Postmaster. Had much to do in the upbuilding of the town of Manitowoc. It is said his son was the first white child born there. Later removed to Missouri, and in 1868, proved up a claim on the Osage lands for a town site, which later became the city of Wichita, Kans. He built the first dwelling in town, which was residence, hotel, and post-office.

WICHITA'S FIRST DWELLING.

Wichita's first dwelling house, after being hid from public view for some thirty-seven years, has suddenly emerged from its seclusion, and now for a few days presents the most interesting of holiday treats.

This house is the homestead of D. S. Munger, erected in 1868 on the claim which he proved up on the Osage lands for a town site, at the suggestion of a Burlingame land company.

What was Mr. Munger's home, is now known as 901 North Waco avenue, where for a generation was the home of the late Commodore W. C. Woodman, Wichita's pioneer banker.

P. J. Conklin has for several years owned the land, and some time ago sold to Dr. J. H. Fuller the historic old dwelling, which was concealed in the Woodman home. It is of interest now for the reason that Dr. Fuller has workmen engaged stripping off the Woodman house which has been as a shell to the historic old first dwelling, and is removing the Munger house to a permanent location closer to the river banks.

It will be recalled that in the spring of 1910 Mr. Conklin presented to the city of Wichita a log cabin which occupied his premises, and this cabin was removed to Central Riverside Park, near the Zoo. It was described by some persons as the Munger cabin. A number of old-timers called the Eagle's attention to the fact that this was a very grave inaccuracy relating to the early history of Wichita, causing the Eagle to secure from Mr. Munger's daughter, living in this city, an authentic story of the Munger home, which they stated was still concealed in what has been known in Wichita for many years as the old Woodman home.

The Eagle printed a number of letters from old-timers who identified the building now in Riverside as a trading-post, in no way connected with the Munger home.

The Munger homestead was Wichita's first dwelling, hotel and postoffice.

As soon as the Indian lands could be proved up for homesteads, Eli P. Waterman proved up one claim, which he sold, and D. S. Munger proved up a claim further to the north. Mr. Munger arrived in Wichita in the spring of 1868, and commenced immediately the construction of his home, a work which occupied most of a year. Mrs. Munger remained at Topeka, their daughter Mary (Mrs. Watson of this city) attended Bethany Seminary at that place. In the spring of 1869 the daughter joined her father, Mrs. Munger coming on in the fall.

The building was constructed of logs for the most part, and were cut by Mr. Munger on what was known as Teuchel Island near the junction of the two rivers. He went to the island in a skiff, cut down the cotton woods and hewed them out with an adz, and carefully joined them. This house was quite pretentious considering the labor necessary in those days of pioneering, when many plains men were content with sod houses, dug-outs or rough puncheons.

Mr. Munger lathed the house, cutting willows and splitting them for the purpose. For plaster he burned his own lime, building a kiln on the river bank back of the house. He used buffalo hair to bind the plaster. He hauled the window glass, sash and flooring from Emporia, overland in freight wagons.

A small log addition on the north end of the house was Wichita's first postoffice, if one may ignore the fact that the "really and truly" first postoffice was Mr. Munger's black silk hat. In this log postoffice room was a table about three feet long, on which were piled cigar boxes for pigeon holes. Here Miss Mary Munger, fourteen years old when she came to Wichita, acted as assistant to the postmaster.

On the north gable of the house, the exterior was plastered, and in the plaster pebbles were embedded in an effort to put a mark of distinction to this first dwelling. (Wichita Eagle, Dec. 24, 1911.)

"Milo Munger was raised on a farm in Salisbury, Herkimer Co., N. Y. At the age of 18 years commenced work at the carpenter's trade, which occupation he followed until about two years previous to the breaking out of the Civil War. In Aug., 1862, he enlisted in the 121st Regt., N. Y. Vol. Infantry, Co. "H," in which he served until the close of the war. He took part in all the battles in which his regiment was engaged, and was wounded several times. He had some narrow escapes; one bullet passed through his cap, another nipped his nose, while yet another took off the heel of his shoe.

"After the war he followed carpentering again, and also had charge of his father's farm for about two years. After marriage commenced housekeeping at his home in Salisbury, and during the following year he worked at the butter and cheese business. He then moved to Shirland, Ill., where he had charge of a butter and cheese factory for five years. He then built a factory in Dunham, where he lived nine years, moving to Harvard (Ill.) in 1884. Mr. Munger was an expert in the making of butter and cheese, and also possessed the executive ability to make a success of handling a chain of factories. At one time he had thirteen factories under his charge, which were as follows: Dunham, Chemung, Bassett's Island, Cold Spring, Highland Prairie, Stewart's, Hebron, Alden, Happy Hollow, Harvard, Lawrence and Conn's.

"The Munger Dairy Company, of which Mr. Munger was President and Treasurer, was incorporated in 1894, and the volume of business it handled was extensive. The goods manufactured were high-class, and the company had the confidence of the public in a financial way. The goods put out by this company were well known throughout the middle West.

"Mr. Munger closed out his factory business in December, 1901, and a year and a half later sold his large farm near the city of Harvard, and made preparations to remove to Oklahoma, where he took up several hundred acres of land located near Wellborn. In 1904, the family said good-bye to Harvard friends, and left for Oklahoma.

"Mr. Munger died from a severe attack of neuralgia, brought on by exposure. Early in the morning of December 23, in company with his son Charles, left his home in Wellborn for a ride of forty-five miles to Liberal, Kans., where he was to take a train for Harvard, his former home. The weather was not very cold, but a piercing wind made the journey uncomfortable, but he seemed to be standing the trip well, until about three o'clock in the afternoon, when he was taken ill. They were then about seven miles from Liberal. The son saw that his father was in a serious condition, and drove back on the trail a distance of a half-mile to a rude shack. Mr. Munger was taken in and made as comfortable as possible, and word sent to Liberal for a doctor, who responded promptly. Some hours later, Mr. Munger was so much better, that it was thought best to push on to Liberal, where it would be possible to give him the best of care. On arrival there, he was taken to a hotel, and everything possible done for him. The following morning he was so much better that he was up and ate breakfast. That afternoon he was taken worse and failed steadily until his death. Like many another veteran, the hardships he underwent in the service of his country undermined his constitution, and he was unable to rally from the severe illness which followed exposure.

"Mr. Munger was a man of strong individuality and had been prominent in Harvard for many years. He was a good citizen and his influence was always exerted on the side of right. He was patriotic and public-spirited, and was never too busy with his affairs to pay heed to private or public charity. Harvard deeply mourns his loss.

"Mr. Munger was a member of the G. A. R.; of the Knights of the Globe; and of the United Workmen." Funeral services were conducted by the J. B. Manzer Post G. A. R. of Harvard. (From local newspaper, Harvard, Ill.)

He met a tragic and unusual death. After the death of his father, was adopted by a man named Gibbs, who lived at Niagara Falls. When a little more than nine years of age, he one day accompanied Mr. Gibbs to the paper mill of which the latter was superintendent and which stood on the river above the falls. While playing about the mill, he accidentally slipped into the raceway and was carried out into the rapids and over the falls. His body was never recovered.

Nathaniel Q. Munger moved from New York to Wisconsin, about 1857, and on Nov. 2, 1860, to Casco, Allegan Co., Mich. Spent the winter of 1860-61 in the log cabin of his twin brother, Sylvester. In the spring cleared land and built a log cabin, and moved his family from their quarters in the barn. At that time it was no unusual thing to shoot deer from his cabin door. Lived here until 1892, when he became permanently located in Allegan, Mich. Here he was engaged in the granite business and heavy monumental work. Was a member of the Methodist Episcopal church of Allegan. "A man of regular and systematic habits, and one well liked in the community in which he lived." Buried at Casco.

"Came to Michigan in Sept., 1847, and settled in the woods. Had to fell timber to clear a place for a log house. Deer were plenty and were frequently shot from our cabin door. We were the fifth family to settle in Town 1—north range 16—West. Redeemed the farm from the woods, planted eight acres to choice apple trees; nine acres to peach trees. There being no outlet, we have sold choice apples for ten cents per bushel. Lived six miles north of So. Haven, and when shipping opened at that place, we realized good prices for our fruits in the Chicago market."

Sylvester F. Munger was a farmer and fruit grower. He was made first Justice of the Peace of Allegan County in 1854; served two terms as postmaster, and several years as hotel proprietor. Served in the Civil War, in Co. "B," 13th Mich. Vol. Infantry. Discharged for disability. Reënlisted in Quartermaster's Department of army post at Nashville, Tenn.

Augustus Munger was a member of Co. "F," 14th Regt., Ill. Vol. Infantry. Was mortally wounded, and died on the field at Pittsburgh Landing. Was found by his brother Sylvester after the battle.

"Died in the dark alone,
With never a pitying face above;
To soothe the dying moan.
Only the night wind's whisper
After the fiery fight;
And a star's dim ray
To light the way,
To the rest beyond the night."

Augustus Munger came of a long line of fighting men. His father served in the War of 1812; his grandfather in the Revolution when only 17 years old; his great-grandfather served in the Revolution from the "Lexington Alarm" to Burgoyne's surrender, including the fight at Bunker Hill, the siege of Boston, battle of Bennington, service at Ticonderoga, and service under Gen. Gates, at the battle of Saratoga; serving as private, and as Sergeant, Lieutenant, and Captain. His great-great-grandfather was a soldier on "The frontier" at the time of the "Great Alarm" in 1747.

"Marvin Clark Munger was left an orphan at the age of thirteen years. In 1852 went to California, where he remained ten years, when he returned to Ohio. Here he married, and located at Ft. Wayne, Ind., where he lived one year, when he removed to Kinderhook, Mich. In 1888 he again removed to California, living at Yuba City for twenty years. At the death of his wife, in 1907, he returned to Michigan, where he now (1910) resides with his daughter. He has crossed the continent six times, twice going by ox team, and has altogether led an active life. On his first trip to California, was accompanied by three brothers, Richard C., William R., and Nathaniel D. They went via St. Joseph, Mo., and were 100 days on the road. Their first stopping place was at 'Hangtown,' which later became Placerville, now the county seat of Eldorado County. In the fall of 1852, these Munger brothers purchased the cabin which was under the famous 'Hangtown Tree,' and the entire outfit, for ten dollars, and lived there for some time, prospecting and mining in Spearfish ravine. This was about two years after the hanging which gave the place its odious name, a brief sketch of which, clipped from the columns of the public press, appears later on. Absence of superstition in the mental make-up of these brothers had made it possible to secure at a bargain, a home on their arrival. Marvin C. continued as a miner only about eighteen months, when he went to farming and fruit raising in the Sacramento valley, being one of the pioneer orchardists in Sutter County. Thus these sturdy young men in their struggle with circumstances were making what is now, in part, the history of a great country. William R. remained in California but a short time, returning to Ohio. Marvin C. and his brother Nathaniel D. went to the Sacramento valley, preëmpted 320 acres of Government land, and engaged in farming and fruit raising, about twelve miles east of Marysville, Yuba County. Four years later, Marvin C. returned to Ohio, and formed a company for emigration to California, among whom were several young men not yet of age. In this company was his younger brother, Jehiel, making five brothers from this family who went to California in the early days of the State. On their passage across the plains these brothers never encountered hostile Indians, or met with any trouble of that nature. Their return trips were made by water, 'Around the Horn.' In his last return trip, Marvin C. was a passenger on the steamer Winfield Scott which was wrecked, when he, with three hundred others, were landed on the Anacapa Islands, off Santa Barbara, Cal. They were on the rocks six days, on very short rations, when a passing vessel carried the news of the wreck to San Francisco, from which place a steamer was sent to their rescue.

An Episode of "Hangtown."

"We arrived at 'Hangtown,' Cal., Aug 30, 1853. 'Hangtown' was situated at the foot of the Sierra Nevadas, about 12 miles from Coloma, where Marshall, in digging a race for a water-way from a sawmill, discovered the first gold nuggets of California. 'Hangtown' derived its name from the hanging of men on what was known as 'Hangtown Tree' for robbing sluice boxes. These sluice boxes were cleaned up once a week, on Saturday or Sunday. These men who were hanged had come in the still of the night and removed the riffles and washed out the gold that had been deposited in them by hard work of the miner. When thieves were caught, they were made short work of by having their necks stretched on 'Hangtown Tree'."—From "Only a remnant of the 49ers," by R. J. Snowhook. In Chicago Record-Herald.

"Mr. Munger was put upon his own resources early in life, his father having died when he was about 14 years of age. He went to the then unsettled West, visiting nearly every part of the trans-Mississippi region, and was one of the California Argonauts in 1849. His work in California was successful, and was the basis of the competence he enjoyed. After his return to Vermont, he married and settled as a farmer at Leicester Junction. In 1881 he removed to Malone, N. Y., having purchased a flour and feed business at that place, and the large stone flouring mill north of the village. This business he conducted with success, until sickness caused its relinquishment. He was sick nearly a year, his ailment being of an obscure character, which confined him almost constantly to his home, his sufferings being so great that death came not with dread but as a relief.

"Mr. Munger was quiet in his tastes and habits, revealing himself only to intimate associates, and was thus well known but by few in the community. The same characteristic withheld him from conspicuously active participation in politics and public affairs, though in each his interest was intense, and his contributions by suggestions and gifts considerable. To local public enterprises he gave a warm support, and few were readier to help forward anything that promised benefit to the town. In business no man could be more upright, and his dealings were characterized by justness and absolute honesty. In conduct and habits his life was irreproachable, and in his home he was the devoted husband and indulgent and tender father." (From public press, in part.)

"MR. J. B. MUNGER, W. Somerville, Mass.

"Dear Sir:

"The enclosed record of the military life of Dexter S. Munger is one which I wrote for the Memorial Records of Post 75, G. A. R., of which Post the deceased was a Comrade.

"After reading your request for his record, I thought that as he had distinguished himself in the service of his country, I would send you the record as we have it, and let you copy what part of it you deemed best. Hoping it may cover the information sought, I remain,

Very Respectfully Yours,

"The following military record of Dexter S. Munger is one that his family may well feel proud of.

"Dexter S. Munger, whose death occurred on the thirteenth of December, 1894, at the residence of his son, Burton Munger of Santa Paula, Cal., was born at Barre, Orleans Co., N. Y., Oct. 31, 1831. At the breaking out of the Rebellion, he took an active part in the raising of troops for its suppression, and on Sept. 5, 1862, he enlisted at Owasso, Mich., in the 6th Regt. Mich. cavalry, and served in that position until Feb. 16, 1864, when he was discharged at Washington, D. C., to receive a commission, and was commissioned as 1st Lieut., and transferred to the 23d Regt. U. S. C. T., serving as Adjt. On July 30, 1864, the Regt. was engaged in the battle known as the 'Mine Explosion' in front of Petersburg, Va., in which engagement he was assigned to the charge of one of the companies, on account of the sickness of its captain. During the engagement he was wounded in the right hand, which resulted in almost a total loss of use of his hand. After returning from the hospital he was granted a short furlough, and rejoined his regiment in Dec., 1864, at Camp Casey, Va., where he was assigned to duty as quartermaster in the Commissary Department.

"During the early part of 1865 he was obliged, on account of his wou to request to be transferred to the Veteran Reserve Corps and on Mar. he was ordered before a board of examination as to his fitness for a pos in this corps. He passed a successful examination, and was commissio 2d Lieut. and assigned to the 23d Regt., with which he remained u discharged at Detroit, Mich., July 3, 1866, making his total ser defense of the Union, three years, nine months and thirteen day

"To the President of the United States:

"Having been associated with Dexter S. Munger, 1st Lieut. of this regiment for the past eleven months, both socially and officially, I take great pleasure in bearing testimony to his high qualities, his efficiency and ability as a soldier, his benevolent and generous disposition as a friend, and his uprightness and high stand point of moral worth as a gentleman, patriot and Christian. On the fatal field of July 30, 1864, in front of Petersburg, where he received his wound, in the actual discharge of his official duty, none were braver, and I consider him in every way worthy of, and fully qualified for, the position he seeks in the Veteran Reserve Corps.

Very Respectfully Submitted,

He was educated in the public schools, and abroad, having accompanied his parents to Europe, in 1862, for the purpose of finishing his education, and where he remained until 1865.

"The death of his father, in 1868, made him owner of large interests in grain elevators and real estate holdings; and the management of this property was his principal occupation for fifteen years. In 1890, having retired from active business, he found leisure for his favorite pursuits, travel and the study of works of art. His collection of paintings, as then formed, was placed on exhibition in the Art Institute early in the same year, and left there as a loan until 1898, when, with additions, it became the property of the Institute by bequest.

"Most of the paintings represented in the collection flourished in the third quarter of the XIX century. Within that period it would be difficult to make a collection of its size more broadly representative. The thirty-eight paintings are judiciously selected examples of the work of thirty-eight artists; 20 French (of various schools), 3 German, 2 Austrian, 1 Hungarian, 1 Russian, 1 Italian, 1 Swedish, 1 Scotch, 1 American, 3 Belgian, 2 modern Dutch, and 2 XVII century Dutch.

"Mr. Munger was a believer in the refining influence of good art on people of all classes. His interest in extending this influence, and in other means of public culture, was practically and substantially manifested, and his comparatively early death was a loss to the community not adequately realized because his work for the public good was simply and quietly done."

Mr. Munger, who was a bachelor, was a member of the Chicago, Calumet, Union and Washington Park clubs; member of the Chicago Board of Nelson O. Munger was formerly a resident of Waterloo, Ia. Served for several years on board registration, 3d ward; also enumerator 12th U. S. Census, same ward. Train Dispatcher for twenty-one consecutive years for I. C. R. R. Six years as telegraph operator. Now retired. Resides at Waterloo, Ia. Served in Co. "B," 46th Regt., Iowa Vol. Infy., in the Civil War.

He removed from his native state of Wisconsin with his mother and brother in 1860, locating at Dubuque, Ia., where he attended the 5th ward school under instruction of Prof. Kretchmar. Leaving school he entered the employ of the Western Union Telegraph Company, but soon after, at the age of 18 years, enlisted and with his regiment went to Memphis, Tenn.

Serving out his term of enlistment, he returned to Dubuque, and again entered the service of the Western Union Co., during which time he took up telegraphy, preparing himself for service as an operator and was assigned to position as operator and clerk at Marion, Ia., for the Dubuque and South Western R. R. under Agent Frank Farley. In 1866 was transferred to Farley, Ia., as ticket agent and operator for the Dubuque and Sioux City R. R. under Superintendent J. P. Farley.

In 1868 was appointed to position as operator in Train Master's office of Dubuque and Sioux City R. R. with headquarters at Dubuque. In 1869 appointed Train Dispatcher, being first to hold this position on Iowa lines of the Dubuque and Sioux City R. R., and in 1876 was transferred to Waterloo, Ia., and again promoted to position of Chief Train Dispatcher Francis E. ("Frank") Munger moved to Dubuque, Ia., Oct. 3, 1860, with his mother and brother, where he attended the public schools until mid-winter of 1867-8, when he took a course in bookkeeping at Bailey's college, after which he became clerk in Pat Dunn's grocery, near corner of 4th and Main streets. Soon after taking this position, Dunn added whiskey to his stock in trade, when the young clerk, having conscientious scruples against the dispensing of liquors, promptly resigned. He soon secured a position in the grocery of Frank Hewitt at Main and 10th streets, where he remained until late fall of 1868, when he left to become clerk in a hardware store at Farley, Ia., and to learn the tinner's trade, preparatory to engaging in that business. Prior to entering on his apprenticeship, the store and tin shop changed hands. He then learned telegraphy of his brother, after which he became assistant to E. T. Stever, agent and telegraph operator for Dubuque and South Western R. R. at Anamosa, Ia., preparatory to entering the service of the R. R. company as agent and telegraph operator.

In December, 1869, entered upon his first position as telegraph operator at Iowa Falls, for the Dubuque and Sioux City R. R. Co., and in 1870 was promoted to position of ticket agent and telegraph operator, for Dubuque and Sioux City, and Dubuque and South Western railroads, at Farley, Ia. In September, 1870, transferred to Independence, Ia., and in 1872 was appointed agent for Illinois Central R. R. at Earlville, Ia. On return from Centennial Exposition in September, 1876, he was advised of contemplated promotion as agent at Osage, Ia., but was not transferred to that place until May 1877, where he remained until December, 1888, when he resigned, going to San Diego, Cal., engaging in real estate business, and as Secretary of the Santa Maria Land and Water Co., at Ramona, Santa Maria Valley, San Diego Co., Cal. In 1889, returned to Osage, Ia., entering the employ of the Illinois Central R. R. as relief agent, later being appointed agent at Onawa, Ia. December 14, 1891, was appointed Traveling Freight Agent of lines west of and including Ft. Dodge, with office at Cherokee. In 1893 headquarters were removed to Sioux City, and in 1900, to Council Bluffs, and in 1910, to Ft. Dodge, Ia. Having been retired from the position of Traveling Freight Agent, he holds an office position at Omaha, Neb. In 1912, when he shall have reached the "age limit," he will be retired on pension, for the remainder of his life.

Energetic, systematic, methodical, he accomplished a vast amount of work. In 1911, when retired from the position of Traveling Freight Agent, two younger men were appointed to cover the territory formerly covered by him. One of these men, when shown the amount of work and travel the position involved, wished to resign, but was told by the company it was "that or nothing," for him.

Orett L. Munger passed his boyhood in his native town in attending school and in giving such help as he could to his father, who was engaged in the drug business. Foregoing a cherished plan to enter Oberlin College, he enlisted as a soldier, August 11, 1862, when a little more than 19 years of age. The company in which he was enrolled became part of the "People's Ellsworth Regt.," and was known as Co. "C," 44th Regt., N. Y. Vol. Infy.* With his company and regiment, which was attached to the Third Brigade, Fifth Division, First Army Corps, Army of the Potomac, he saw two years' service in the field and participated in the following battles: Fredericksburg, Chancellorsville, Upperville, Gettysburg, Jones Cross Roads, Wapping Heights, Rappahannock Station, Mine Run, Wilderness, Laurel Hill, Spottsylvania, North Anna, Bethesda Church, Petersburg and Poplar Grove Church.

On the 8th day of May, 1864, in an assault on the enemy's position by the 44th N. Y. and the 83d Pa. regiments, he was taken prisoner with others, and was slightly wounded at Laurel Hill, Va. Marching toward Richmond under guard, this squad of prisoners, increased by later captures to the number of 250, was most fortunate in being recaptured when within half a mile of Beaver Dam Station by Custer's Brigade of Sheridan's cavalry, then on its remarkable raid around Richmond. A painful fast of forty-eight hours was here broken, and the abundant food stored by General Lee for his army at this supposedly safe point, served to feed hungry Union men and horses, and later the flames, which destroyed supplies, and trains, and station.

At the organization of the company to which he belonged, he was chosen 1st Sergeant and later was promoted to be 2d Lieutenant, then 1st Lieutenant, then Captain. In Grant's Virginia campaign, in 1864, he acted as Adjutant, in the absence of that officer, and on Oct. 3 of that year was honorably mustered out by reason of expiration of term. Is now member of the Grand Army of the Republic, and of the Military Order of the Loyal Legion, and for the year 1909, President of the Western Society of the Army of the Potomac.

In 1865 became teller in First National Bank of Mercer, Pa., serving two years in this capacity and then for twelve years as cashier. In 1881 resigned to accept a better business opportunity with his brothers in Chicago, which city has since been his home. Was secretary and treasurer of the Munger Laundry Co. for many years, and is now its president. Member of the McCabe Memorial Methodist Episcopal church of Chicago, and for more than ten years has been president of its Board of Trustees.

PLINY FISK MUNGER.

In the death of Mr. Pliny Fisk Munger the Hyde Park Improvement Association has lost one of its most efficient members. A former president and always a member of its directory, he was foremost in pushing to its present efficiency the organization which stands for better living conditions in this section of our city. He was a most progressive man and could be counted on to further any work that had for its aim the betterment of his fellow men. Quiet and unobtrusive, he performed his part without ostentation, but with telling effectiveness. His remarkably genial nature drew around him a large circle of friends. His ready wit and his droll sayings made him the center of a group of happy companions. His early life was developed in an old-fashioned religious atmosphere, which instilled into his nature a vast fund of Scripture, and it was his custom to quote it, applying it to everyday incidents of life in a most original way. His home life was ideal; there his life was lived. He was the executive head of his business and there commanded the respect and compelled the love of a large corps of employes. His death makes a vacancy socially, in the business world and in the movement for civic progress that will not be readily filled. He passed from life on Thursday, Aug. 26, and was buried from his home, 5212 Lexington avenue, on Sunday, the 29th, Rev. Dr. Joseph Vance conducting the service.

A friend who had known him for forty years remarked as he turned from his grave in Oakwoods: "The world is poorer, for there has gone from our midst a devoted husband, a loving father, a loyal friend, an upright citizen, a successful business man, and, above all, a good man." (From Chicago Saturday Evening Call, Sept. 4, 1909.)

Co., and from 1886 to 1891 in the employ of the Morgan Co. In 1892 in company with the veteran lumberman and dealer, Carlton Foster, and his brother Harry B., established the Foster-Munger Co., manufacturers of doors, sash, and blinds, and interior finish, and dealers in art glass, church and memorial windows, with salesrooms and factory in Chicago, and mills at Milwaukee. Mr. Munger was at the time of his death vice president and director of this company, with offices at West 20th and South Sangamon streets. He was also member of the lumberman's order of "Hoo Hoo," and in politics, a life-long Republican.

GOODBYE.

Goodbye, dear friend. Now turns the tide
That empties in the crystal sea;
And you that we have walked beside
Launch forth into eternity—
Goodbye, dear friend.

Goodbye, dear friend. We see your bark,
A mystic bird with pinions white,
A sail that flutters in the dark,
A voice that answers in the night—
Goodbye, dear friend.

Goodbye, dear friend. We do not fear,
We only weep, we do not doubt.
The night is sweet, the sky is clear,
And quietly the tide runs out—
Goodbye, dear friend.

Goodbye, dear friend. You fearless go;
We say farewell as fearlessly,
The helmsman of your bark we know,
Behold Christ Jesus—it is He.
Goodbye, dear friend.

Goodbye, dear friend—and not goodbye;
For now we see the self-same star,
The signal in the changeless sky,
And we shall find you where you are—
Goodbye, dear friend.

He received his education in the public schools of Oshkosh, Wis., where his boyhood was spent. Went to work in 1880 for O. D. Peck & Son, manufacturers of sash, doors and blinds, as shipping clerk, changing to go with Carlton Foster & Co. in the same line of business, doing general office work and some selling in 1882.

In 1886 he was sent to Chicago, Ill., to open and manage a distributing warehouse for Carlton Foster & Co., Chicago then coming into prominence as the great central distributing market, continuing in this capacity until 1892, when in company with Carlton Foster and his brother, John E. Munger, he organized the Foster-Munger Co., manufacturers and wholesalers of sash, doors, blinds, mouldings and window glass. Harry Munger was secretary of this concern, later becoming president on the death of Mr. Foster.

The Foster-Munger Company was in active business until 1912, when Harry Munger and his associates took over the business of the Chicago Millwork Supply Company with offices and warehouse located at W. 37th St. and Loomis Place, where a general lumber, millwork and building material business is being carried on with the consumer direct, and their specialty being houses complete.

Mr. Munger is well known and liked amongst the men higher up in the distributing end of the lumber business.

The following, taken from a newspaper clipping furnished us by a correspondent, is all we have concerning Mr. Munger:

"Charles H. Monger, editor and proprietor of the Anamosa Journal, died at his home at Anamosa, Jones Co., Ia., July 2, 1896. Born in the village of Newmarket, near Toronto, Canada, Oct. 20, 1849. In 1857 came with his parents to Iowa. In 1860 the family settled in Davenport, and thence removed to Independence, where his father, John Monger, an attorney, died in 1866. Charles grew up in the printing office of the Dubuque Herald, and as city editor of the Herald in the early 70's he acquired a reputation as a vigorous and enterprizing news gatherer, and a graceful and facile writer.

"Mr. Monger was one of the most talented and graceful writers on the press of Iowa. He was widely known to the newspaper fraternity of the State. A few years ago he visited Europe and wrote a series of letters to the Telegraph which attested his rare talents as a descriptive writer.

"The newspaper fraternity appreciated him also for his social qualities, which made him welcome in every circle. His ideals were lofty, his imagination rich, and his soul full of noble sentiment."

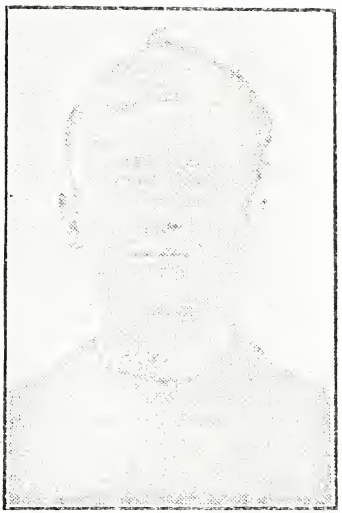
George M. Munger served in the Civil War from 1862 until 1865, in Co. "C," 4th Mich. Cavalry, and was the man who detected and captured Jefferson Davis, President of the Confederacy, near Irwinsville, Ga. The following is from a clipping from the public press of Erie, Pa., of a date unknown, but probably in the summer of 1897:



George Marion Munger

Corporal, Co. C, 4th Michigan Cavalry

8th Gen.

"Erie has the distinguished honor of having in it, as a guest, the brave soldier who detected and captured Jefferson Davis, the president of the Southern Confederacy."

"The man who was the principal actor in the dramatic scene attending the capture was Corporal George M. Munger, of the 4th Mich. Cavalry, who is in the city making a short visit with his son, Lee Munger, assistant ticket agent at the Union Depot. He will go to-day as guest of the Strong Vincent Post, to Buffalo, on the Lake Shore train. Mr. Munger is a well preserved man of fifty-two, and looks ten years younger. He is a dealer in agricultural implements in Cass County, Mich., and candidate for postmaster in his town."

"When it got out yesterday that the man who captured Jeff Davis was at the depot, hundreds of patriotic citizens went there to meet him and be permitted to shake hands with a man who had played so important a part in the great drama. Capt. J. C. Mackintosh and Toby Welsh and others of Strong Vincent Post officiated at the impromptu levee." In an interview Mr. Munger told the following:

STORY OF THE CAPTURE.

"Mr. Munger said with some hesitancy: 'I do not like to be conspicuous in this matter, but history bears out the story I will tell you. I was one of the 128 men sent out under Lieutenant Colonel Pritchard. When near Irwinsville, Ga., we ran across Colonel Harnden of the 1st Wis., who said they had struck Davis' trail and were entitled to it, and of course we gave way to the Wis. detachment. We bore off to the right and while on our way ran across a colored man who volunteered information which put us in the way of overhauling the Davis outfit.

"'The camp in which we found Davis and his family was pleasantly situated, surrounded by a thick pine forest close to a swamp, and not far from a running brook. In the camp were three wall tents, and close by were some horses. I stopped to trade horses as mine was jaded. We did not know we had struck the Davis party then. Over a little distance from where I was there were more tents. Just about daylight I saw some women leave a tent and go off toward the brook. Private James Bullard was with me, and we talked about the impropriety of allowing anybody to leave the tents without permission. I jumped into my saddle and rode over to the women, about twenty rods away, and rode in front of them. I asked them where they were going and the woman who turned out to be Mrs. Jefferson Davis said, "We are going to the brook to get water to perform our toilet." I sat in the saddle with my gun lying across the pommel, and I noticed one of the party clothed with a shawl over the head, and wearing a waterproof for a skirt. I also observed that this person had boots on as the skirt was held up out of the wet grass. I said, "Who is that?" pointing to the booted individual. "That is my mother," Mrs. Davis responded. I said, "What is your mother doing with boots on?" and I just mechanically swung my gun around and raised the hammer. At that moment Davis was looking into the muzzle of my piece. Mrs. Davis in great alarm placed her hand over her husband's face and said, "Don't shoot! you may not admire Mr. Davis' principles, but remember he is a reverend man." I said, "Well, turn around then and go back." Bullard and others were with me then. When Col. Pritchard got back from calling off some other men who had got into a fight by mistake with the 1st Wis., I said, "Colonel, I think we've Davis." The Colonel, addressing the figure with the shawl over his head, said: "Who may I call you?" "You may call me whom you are a mind to," tartly responded Davis. "Well then," said the Colonel, "I will call you Davis." To this the captured Confederate said: "I thought your government was more magnanimous than to be chasing women and children around over the country."

" 'Now that is the story of the capture as nearly as I can recall it. I have told it that way, and have never been contradicted. I am the man who headed Davis off, and detected the fact that one of the party was a man, and by Mrs. Davis' unwitting remark learned that the suspect was Davis. I have had opportunities to make a great deal of a splurge over the part I took in the capture, but I would not do it because there were others with me and I just happened to be the individual with the authority to do what I did. I am satisfied with the part I took and am willing my comrades should have their share in the honor of giving the last and final blow to the Southern Confederacy.' "

George W. Munger is an attorney and former newspaper man, being associated with his brother, Orrin L., both in newspaper work and in the practice of the law.

At the age of seven years his parents moved to Texas, going through by wagons, which journey furnished much excitement and many attractive scenes to Young America. Remaining in the Lone Star State but one season, they returned to Lesterville, Mo., where he attended the public school at intervals until eighteen years of age. At this age he came to Carter County and taught the Beaver Dam school, at the close of which he entered the Farmington Baptist College. On leaving college, he engaged himself in teaching school for a time, then located at Van Buren, Mo., to learn the printer's trade. An opportunity offering, he secured control of the Van Buren Current Local, which, in connection with his brother, he conducted with success.

The law being more attractive than newspaper life, he sold his interest in the paper, and entered a law school in St. Louis. In 1893 he was admitted to the bar before Judge Green in Reynolds County, Mo., and in January, 1894, located in Van Buren, in the practice of the law. In November, 1894, was elected prosecuting attorney of Carter County, in which capacity he faithfully served the people, making himself a terror to law breakers.

He is a member of Van Buren Lodge, No. 509, A. F. and A. M., and has held the honored position of W. M. in that lodge. Democrat in politics, and former chairman of the Central Committee of his county, and is known as an able and fearless leader.

The family belongs to Hudson River branch.

"In the days of Martin Luther, or thereabout, Henry VIII of England offered a grant of land to seven Munger brothers of Germany if they would emigrate to England, and settle with their families on the land so granted. This offer was accepted, and these Munger families settled in England, early in the sixteenth century. This land was later confiscated by the English government, during religious troubles. In 1639, some descendants of these Mungers sailed for America, arriving in the fall of that year. Some of them settled in New Jersey, at what is now Jersey City; others along both shores of the Hudson river, and some no doubt, located over east." (Tradition given by Miss Mary E. Munger.)

To this tradition Miss Munger adds the following facts: "Our branch settled in Columbia Co., N. Y. My grandfather, Benjamin Munger, was born in Copake, Columbia County, with several others, brothers and sisters, three of whose names I remember: James, Henry, and David, the latter two going West before the Civil War. My grandfather, Benjamin, married Almira Stalker about 1835, and settled at Hudson, N. Y., where their three children, Robert (my father), Frances and Sara, were born. They came to Albany about 1847, just before the big fire. My father married Elizabeth Ferguson in 1862, by whom he had eleven children, six of whom are living, two boys and four girls." (M. E. M., Albany, N. Y., 1910.)

EIGHTY BIRTHDAYS.

The following lines were written for rehearsal on the occasion of the 80th anniversary of the birth of Mr. Henry F. Munger, by Miss Abbie Mills of Rockford, Ill.:

Birthdays, once, seemed long in coming,
Long the days that passed between,
And the next, we said, is twenty
Though we scarce had crossed nineteen.

Birthdays, then, a score were telling
That the year of years had come.
Oh! that ne'er forgotten springtime
When the birds sang "TWENTY ONE!"

Birthdays now are coming faster,
Glide almost unheeded by
'Mid the busy cares of manhood.
By the milestones how we fly!

Birthdays thus behind us flitting
See! a doubled score they stand,
All like faithful friends declaring
That the western slope's at hand.

Birthdays 'mid the glowing noontide,
Ne'er the like we'll see again!
Summer's noontide, golden harvests
Ripening fast o'er all the plain.

Birthdays now each other crowding
Point us to the other shore,
But the shreds of time are left us,
See the writing is, "Threescore!"

Birthdays sad, or full of pleasure
How we con them o'er and o'er,
Wondering much how many birthdays
Will be added to the store.

Birthdays now are like the starlight
Or the bow that spans the sky,
Rifts that tell us home and heaven
With its countless years draw nigh.

Birthdays, and the months between them,
Leave us now on swiftest wing,
Yet of goodness and of mercy
We will ever, ever sing.

Birthdays, eighty birthdays given;
Truly 'tis a bounteous store.
Praise the Lord, who hath permitted
Numbered years to reach fourscore.

Birthdays, O! the few remaining!
May they grow, each one more bright!
May the echo clear be sounding
"At the evening time 'tis light."

Birthdays, are they never counted
Where eternal years go by?
Where the springtime waneth never,
Where the dwellers never die?

Birthdays there we may remember,
But none over there grow old.
Youth eternal! Hallelujah!
O what joy those years enfold!

Infy., and served faithfully for about three years; was captured in the month of May, 1864, while engaged as color bearer. To save flag from capture, he quickly rolled it up and hid it between two dead men. One of his comrades afterward got possession of the flag, and has it to this day. He was carried a prisoner to Elmyra, N. Y., and was held captive for 14 months. During his imprisonment he secured some books, and spent part of his time in study. He earned extra rations by making chains, rings, and sundry other articles, from material secured from outside parties. He has always been a man of great energy; has lived comfortably since his war experiences, and at this writing is enjoying good health, and the "ties that bind" father, mother, and children, grow stronger as the years pass by."
